A Complete Guide to Multilevel Writing

The writing paper explained part by part, with official band descriptors, a marked script and twenty full practice exercises — each with model answers, a trilingual word list and vocabulary and sentence practice.

20 exercises | 60 model answers | 800 words & phrases | English · Russian · Uzbek | Practice + answer key

WHAT YOU WRITE

One situation, two emails — then an online discussion post.

TASK 1.1	TASK 1.2	TASK 2
50	120–150	180–200
words · informal	words · formal	words · discussion

How to use this book

START HERE

Every exercise follows the same eight-page cycle. Work through it in order — the model answers only help once you have written your own.

THE CYCLE

1 · Read the situation. One prompt letter sets up all three tasks. Underline what you are asked to do — most lost marks come from missing a question, not from weak English.

2 · Task 1.1, about 50 words. A message to a friend: informal, warm, and still an answer to the task.

3 · Task 1.2, 120–150 words. The same situation in a formal email. Hold the register from first line to signature.

4 · Task 2, 180–200 words. A discussion post: take a position, support it, close it properly. Two pages are given.

5 · Compare with the models. Do not copy them. Look at how each is organised and what language carries the argument.

6 · Learn the word list. Twenty words per task, with Russian and Uzbek, taken from the models themselves.

7 · Do the practice page. Four tasks on that unit's language. The answer key is at the back of the book.

WORD COUNT

Examiners do not reward extra length. A 260-word Task 2 is not a better Task 2 — it is an unfinished one that ran out of control.

REGISTER

The commonest fault is a formal email that slips into chat ("Hi there", "Thanks a lot!") halfway through. Choose a register and hold it.

SIGN-OFFS

A named person or title-holder takes YOURS SINCERELY; a role or department with no name takes DEAR SIR OR MADAM and YOURS FAITHFULLY.

A marked script

This is an official examiner-marked script for the fitness club task you will meet in Exercise 5. Read the responses, the marks and the examiner's comments together: they show exactly what moves an answer up or down a band.

A marked sample

EXAMINER'S MARKS

Task 1.1 — 5 / 5

Hi Ben,

Did you hear the club is closing for a month? I'm really disappointed — we'll miss our workouts! I think they should offer online classes or outdoor group sessions during the break. Also, it'd be great if they improve the showers and maybe add more space in the stretching area.

Take care,

Nico

EXAMINER'S COMMENT

The response is beyond level B1.

Task 1.2 — 3 / 6

Dear Manager,

Thank you for your email. Even I understand that the building needs some repairs and new equipment, I was a bit disappointed to hear that the fitness club will be closed for one month. I usually come a few times a week, so it's an important part of my lifestyle.

I would like to suggest some improvements. The changing rooms are sometimes too small and not very clean, so maybe they can be repaired. It would be also nice to have more fitness classes in the evenings when most people can come.

Thank you for listening to our opinions. I hope to return to club soon.

Best regards,

Nicolas Tedros.

EXAMINER'S COMMENT

The response is on topic, but the questions are not fully addressed.

The register is appropriate. A range of complex structures are used.

Vocabulary is sufficient to discuss the topics. Errors in grammar and word choice do not cause misunderstanding.

Some cohesive devices and referencing are used to connect sentences.

Task 2 — 4 / 6

I think living in a small town is better than living in a big city, even if both have some advantages. In my opinion, small towns are more calm and people can live there with less stress. There is not so much noise and traffic like in big cities, so it's easier to relax and enjoy free time. Also, the air is more clean and the nature is closer, which is good for health.

Another reason is that people in small towns usually know each other and are more friendly. There is a stronger feeling of community, and it's easier to make friends. For example, in my town I often meet people I know when I go outside.

Of course, big cities offer more job opportunities and better education. You can find more shops, cinemas, and restaurants there. But I think life in a city can be very fast and tired. It's not easy to find a silent place or to have time for yourself.

In conclusion, I prefer to living in a small town because the life is easier and more peaceful. I know that some people choose big cities, but for me, small town gives better quality of life.

The response is relevant and the stance is clear.

A range of complex structures are used. Vocabulary is sufficient to discuss the topics.

Errors in grammar and some awkward usage of vocabulary do not cause misunderstanding.

Clear structure with some use of connectors and logical flow.

OVERALL SCORE	STANDARD SCORE	LEVEL
12 / 17	57	B2

WHAT THIS SCRIPT TEACHES YOU

- Task 1.2 lost marks for coverage, not for language: the letter answers only part of what the manager asked. Always check how many questions the prompt contains.
- Task 2 scored 4 rather than 5 because of awkward word choice ("life in a city can be very tired", "I prefer to living"), not because of the ideas.
- Neither script is perfect English. Band 4–5 answers still contain small errors; what matters is that the errors never stop the reader understanding.

A library closure

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 You are a member of a local community library. You received an email from the head librarian.

> Dear Member,
> I hope this message finds you well. I regret to inform you that the library will be closed for two weeks starting next Friday for renovations and upgrades to our facilities. We aim to enhance your reading experience.
> In the meantime, we would love to hear your suggestions on what new programs or services we could offer upon reopening. Your input is invaluable to us.
> Best regards,
> The Head Librarian

TASK 1.1

Write a letter to your friend, who is also a member of the library. Write about your feelings and what you think the library management should do about the situation.

TASK 1.2

120–150 words

Write a letter to the head librarian. Write about your feelings and what you think the library management should do about the situation.

PART 2 · TASK 2

180–200 words

You are taking part in an online discussion for language learners.

> The question is:
> "What are the advantages and disadvantages of online learning compared to traditional classroom learning?"

Post your response, giving reasons and examples. Take a clear position, support it with reasons and examples, and finish with a conclusion.

TASK 1.2 What exactly am I asked for? List every question.

TASK 2 My position, two reasons, one example each, the other side.

Exercise 1 · Model answers

PART 1

Read these after you have written your own. Notice the structure and the linking language, not just the ideas.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Did you get the email? The library is closing for two weeks for renovations. I'm really disappointed, because I have just started a new series. I think they should set up a small shelf in the community hall so that members can still borrow books. What do you think?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Head Librarian,

Thank you for letting us know about the upcoming renovations. I understand that the building needs to be upgraded, but I must admit that I feel disappointed, because the library is an important part of my week and two weeks is a long time without it.

I would like to suggest a few things. Firstly, it would help enormously if members could borrow extra books just before the closure. Secondly, a temporary collection in the community hall would keep the service running for readers who cannot afford to buy books.

Finally, when the library reopens, I would love to see more e-books and audiobooks, as well as evening workshops or author talks. Clear updates about the reopening date would also be very welcome.

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 1 · Model answer

PART 2

"What are the advantages and disadvantages of online learning compared to traditional classroom learning?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

That is a very relevant question, and having studied in both ways, I can see clear advantages and disadvantages.

The biggest advantage of online learning is flexibility. You can open the materials whenever your schedule allows, which is invaluable if you are working or looking after a family. You can also repeat a difficult explanation as many times as you need, which is impossible in a live class. In addition, the range of resources available online, from interactive exercises to huge digital libraries, is far wider than any single classroom can offer.

On the other hand, a traditional classroom offers a social dynamic that is hard to reproduce on a screen. Face-to-face contact with the teacher and the other students produces immediate feedback and spontaneous discussion, and this really does increase both understanding and motivation. Group activities in a real room fix new vocabulary in your memory in a way that breakout rooms rarely do, and studying alone online can feel isolating.

Overall, I believe the best solution is a blended approach that combines the convenience of online resources with the human contact of the classroom.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you seen the flyer about the new park? I am thrilled! Our street finally gets a green space for walking and meeting people. I really hope they include a playground for the children and a few benches in the shade. Shall we send our ideas together?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to express my enthusiasm about the plans for a new community park in our neighbourhood. This is a wonderful opportunity to improve our local environment and to bring neighbours together.

To make the park useful for everyone, I would like to suggest several features. Firstly, walking and cycling paths would encourage outdoor exercise at any age. Secondly, picnic areas with tables and benches would give families somewhere to gather, and a fenced playground would offer a safe space for small children.

Finally, I hope you will plant native trees and shrubs, which would both beautify the park and support local wildlife. Thank you for consulting residents, and I look forward to seeing the project take shape.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

PART 2

"Is technology making our lives better or worse?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Technology is a much debated subject, and in my view its effect on our lives is neither entirely good nor entirely bad.

On the positive side, technology has clearly improved our quality of life. Medical advances have produced better treatment, and telemedicine now allows patients in remote areas to consult a doctor without travelling for hours. Communication has been transformed as well: social platforms keep us in touch with relatives abroad, and online courses have opened education to people who could never have attended a university in person.

There are, however, real costs. Constant use of smartphones and social media is linked to isolation and anxiety, particularly among teenagers who compare themselves with everyone they see on a screen. Automation is also replacing familiar jobs faster than workers can retrain for new ones. Perhaps most worrying of all, the sheer volume of information online makes it harder, not easier, for people to tell what is actually true.

Ultimately, I would argue that technology itself is neutral and that the outcome depends on how carefully we use it. If we set sensible limits and invest in retraining, the benefits will clearly outweigh the drawbacks.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Did you read the message from HR? They are planning a proper welcome for new staff. I think it is a great idea. I hope new people get a friendly colleague to show them around and a team lunch in their first week, so nobody has to eat alone on day one.

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear HR Department,

Thank you for your message about improving the welcome our new colleagues receive. I fully support the plan, as a good start makes a real difference to how quickly someone settles in.

I would like to suggest three practical steps. Firstly, a buddy system, in which an experienced colleague guides a new starter for the first few weeks, would give them someone to ask the small questions they may hesitate to raise with a manager. Secondly, a team lunch in the first week would make introductions easy and relaxed.

Finally, please make sure that a desk, a computer and all the necessary access are ready before the first day, together with a clear timetable for that week.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 3 · Model answer

PART 2

"Are celebrities good role models for young people?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Whether celebrities make good role models is, in my opinion, a question with no single answer: some certainly do, and many clearly do not.

On the positive side, a number of well-known figures use their fame responsibly. Some campaign for environmental causes or fund educational charities, and an actor who speaks publicly about the value of reading can persuade thousands of teenagers to open a book. Athletes are often even more convincing, because the dedication and discipline behind their success are visible to everyone.

However, the opposite is equally common. The lifestyle presented on many celebrity accounts is extravagant and encourages young people to measure themselves by possessions and appearance. This creates expectations that ordinary life can never satisfy, and the scandals that follow some famous names set a poor example to an audience still too young to judge what it sees critically. Teenagers are particularly vulnerable here, because the people they admire are presented to them as polished images rather than as real human beings.

For that reason, I would say that celebrities can be role models, but young people should look past the glamour and follow the actions rather than the image.

Did you see the head teacher's message about improving the school? I think it is a really good idea. I am hoping for better resources in the classrooms and a quiet room where students can work or just calm down at break. Shall we write our suggestions together?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Head Teacher,

Thank you for your message about improving our school environment. I fully support the initiative and believe it is an excellent opportunity to make the school better for students and staff alike.

To support students, I would suggest creating designated quiet zones where they can study independently or simply rest during breaks. Investing in interactive learning tools and replacing the oldest classroom furniture would also improve concentration and comfort noticeably.

For teachers, clearer communication channels and a proper staff room for planning and short breaks would be extremely welcome. Simplifying our administrative paperwork, perhaps through better digital tools, would free up time for teaching itself. I would be glad to help develop any of these ideas.

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 4 · Model answer

PART 2

"What do you think about the impact of social media on young users?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

Social media has become part of daily life for almost every teenager, and I believe its influence is genuinely double-edged.

On the one hand, these platforms give young users real opportunities to connect. They keep friendships alive, share experiences and join communities that would be impossible to find in a small town. Instagram and TikTok also allow them to express their creativity and show talents to an audience, which can build confidence and a clear sense of identity. For teenagers who feel different from everyone around them, finding others with the same interests online can be genuinely important.

On the other hand, the risks cannot be ignored. The pressure to present a perfect image online leads many young people to feel inadequate, and research has repeatedly linked heavy use to anxiety and low self-esteem. Cyberbullying is a further danger, and its emotional effects can last for years. The design of these apps makes matters worse, since they are deliberately built to hold attention for as long as possible.

In conclusion, while social media offers valuable chances to connect and create, it also threatens well-being. Young users need to use these platforms thoughtfully and keep a healthy balance with real-world life.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you read the manager's email? The club is closing for a whole month. I am quite disappointed, because I train there three times a week. I think they should run outdoor sessions in the park so that we keep our routine. Would you come to those?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Manager,

Thank you for telling us about the temporary closure of the fitness centre. I understand that the repairs and the new equipment are necessary, but I must admit that I am disappointed, as training here is an important part of my week.

You asked what else should change. In my opinion, the changing rooms need attention most: they are small and often untidy. I would also welcome more classes in the evening, when most members are free. A few members have also mentioned that the equipment in the free-weights area is often left untidy.

As for the closing month, outdoor group sessions in the park or online training videos would keep us motivated. Regular updates on the progress of the work would also be appreciated.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 5 · Model answer

PART 2

"Is it better to live in a big city or a small town?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Both big cities and small towns have their attractions, but on balance I believe a big city offers more for someone at the start of their career.

The first reason is opportunity. Cities contain far more employers, and a person working in a specialised field has a realistic chance of finding the right job. Someone interested in technology, for example, will find many more openings in a city than in a provincial town.

The second reason is variety. Museums, theatres, concerts and restaurants from a dozen countries are all within reach, and this constant contact with different cultures broadens the way you think. A city also exposes you to ideas and people you would simply never meet at home.

Of course, city life has a price. Housing is expensive, the streets are noisy and the pace can be exhausting, whereas a small town offers calm and a genuine sense of community. Many people also find that neighbours in a small town know and help one another in a way that rarely happens in a city block.

In the end the choice depends on your stage of life, but for those seeking growth, the city is usually the better option.

PART 1 You recently stayed at the Grandview Hotel for a short trip. Unfortunately, your experience was not good: your room was very noisy and the air conditioning was not working properly. After you complained at check-out, the hotel has sent you an apology letter.

> We truly regret that your experience fell short of our usual high standards. Please be assured that we are addressing these issues immediately to prevent similar occurrences for future guests.

Hi Jack,

Do you remember how noisy my room at the Grandview was? The hotel has written to apologise. They admitted the problems and offered me a free night in a renovated room. I think that is a fair response, so I will probably accept it. Fancy coming along?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for your letter about my recent stay at the Grandview Hotel. I appreciate that you have acknowledged the noise and the problem with the air conditioning rather than dismissing my complaint, and I am glad to hear that the faults are being dealt with.

I am also grateful for the offer of a complimentary night in a newly renovated room. It is a generous gesture and I would like to accept it. It shows that you take guest comfort seriously, and that is why I will be happy to stay with you again.

I intend to return within the next three months and will contact the reception to arrange a suitable date. I would simply ask that the room be on a quiet floor, away from the lift.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 6 · Model answer

PART 2

"What are the reasons for air pollution?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

Air pollution affects almost every large city in the world, and in my view three causes stand out.

The first is industry. Factories release large quantities of harmful gases and fine particles while they are producing goods, and in countries with heavy manufacturing, such as China and India, air quality falls sharply around industrial areas.

The second cause is transport. Vehicles burning petrol and diesel emit carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides, and where traffic is dense these gases form the smog that triggers breathing problems. Los Angeles and Mexico City are well-known examples of cities where the sheer number of cars damages the air.

The third cause is domestic. Burning wood or coal for heating and cooking fills the air with smoke and toxic substances, a practice still common in many developing countries and a serious risk to the families concerned. Rural households are often the hardest to reach with cleaner alternatives, because wood and coal remain the cheapest fuel available to them.

Industry, transport and household fuel are therefore the main culprits, and tackling all three is essential if air quality and public health are to improve.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Big news at work: HR is going to let some people work from home. I am really pleased, because the daily commute takes two hours of my life. I hope they include my department, as I concentrate far better at my own desk. How does it work at your office?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear HR Manager,

Thank you for your letter about the new policy on working from home. I welcome the decision and believe it can benefit both staff and the company.

For employees, the clearest gain is time. Without a long commute, people arrive at work rested, and many of us concentrate better at home, where there are fewer interruptions than in an open-plan office. For the company, that usually means higher productivity, better morale and lower office costs.

I would therefore like to ask that my own role be considered for the scheme. Most of my work is done on a computer, and with a reliable internet connection and a weekly team meeting I am confident I could do it just as effectively from home.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 7 · Model answer

PART 2

"Why is the crime rate increasing among teenagers?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

The rise in crime among teenagers is a serious problem, and I do not think a single cause can explain it.

One factor is the influence of the internet. Young people are exposed to violent material long before they are mature enough to judge it, and constant exposure can make aggression look ordinary rather than shocking.

A second and probably stronger factor is social and economic. Poverty, unstable homes and the absence of adult supervision create exactly the conditions in which crime grows. A teenager from a disadvantaged background who sees no realistic future may turn to theft out of desperation rather than choice. Where a family is struggling simply to pay for food and rent, children are often left to supervise themselves for most of the day.

A third factor is untreated mental illness. Depression and anxiety that nobody notices can express themselves as anti-social or destructive behaviour. Boys in particular are far less likely than girls to ask for help when something is wrong.

In short, the problem has several roots and will not be solved by punishment alone. Support for struggling families, better schooling and real opportunities are all part of the answer.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Mr Edward has sent me a letter about the noise from my party last night. I feel rather embarrassed, as I never meant to disturb anyone. From now on I will keep the music down and warn the neighbours beforehand. Shall we talk about it this evening?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Mr Edward,

Thank you for your letter about the noise from my flat last night. I am sorry that my guests disturbed you and your family. I had not realised how clearly the sound carries through the building, and it was certainly never my intention to cause you any trouble.

I would like to assure you that it will not happen again. In future I will keep gatherings smaller and quieter, turn the music off by ten o'clock, and let you know in advance whenever I am expecting visitors. I have also spoken to the two families on my floor so that they know they can contact me directly if anything disturbs them.

I value good relations with my neighbours and I hope this letter puts the matter right.

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 8 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should students be banned from using smartphones at school?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

Whether smartphones belong in school is a question that divides parents and teachers, and I would argue for clear rules rather than a complete ban.

There is no denying that phones distract. A screen lighting up with notifications makes it almost impossible for a teenager to follow the lesson, and we have all seen students scrolling through social media while the teacher is explaining something important. That constant temptation genuinely damages learning.

However, a smartphone is also a powerful tool. Dictionaries, research sites, language apps and digital textbooks all sit in a student's pocket, and banning the device removes those opportunities along with the distraction. A student who has forgotten a word can look it up in seconds instead of losing the thread of the lesson entirely.

The sensible answer, in my opinion, lies between the two positions. Phones should be put away during direct teaching and brought out only for specific tasks the teacher has set. Schools should also teach responsible digital habits, because students will carry those habits long after they leave the classroom. A blanket ban also teaches nothing: it simply removes the device without ever showing young people how to manage it sensibly.

Exercise 9 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should children learn a foreign language from the time they start school, or is it better to wait until secondary school?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

This is a long-running debate, and although both approaches have something to recommend them, I am firmly in favour of starting early.

The main argument for primary school is that young children are extraordinarily receptive to new sounds and patterns. They absorb pronunciation without effort and, crucially, they are not yet self-conscious enough to be afraid of making mistakes, which is precisely what fluency requires. Children who begin Spanish at six usually end up with a more natural accent and a surer instinct for grammar than those who begin at twelve.

I do accept, however, that starting early is only useful if it is done well. Formal grammar drills with seven-year-olds achieve very little and can put a child off the language for years. Early teaching has to be built on songs, games and stories. The same is true of listening: a young ear distinguishes unfamiliar sounds that an adult learner may never hear properly at all.

Provided primary schools can offer that kind of lively, immersive teaching, I believe starting young gives children a lasting advantage and a skill they will keep for life.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Our internet provider has finally written to us. They admit there is a fault in our area and promise to repair it soon. I am relieved that they accept the problem, but I am still annoyed. They should tell us honestly when it will be fixed. Has yours improved?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for your email acknowledging the connection problems in our area. I am glad the fault has been recognised, but I must be honest: after six weeks of an unreliable service, I am frustrated. My connection drops during video calls for work, which has caused real difficulty.

You asked what should be improved. Firstly, the equipment in our district clearly needs upgrading, as the problem affects the whole street. Secondly, customers should receive honest updates with a realistic repair date rather than general apologies. A clear explanation of what has actually gone wrong would also reassure customers far more than a standard message.

Finally, I hope you will consider some compensation for the weeks we have paid for a service we could not use.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 10 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should schools teach practical skills such as managing money and cooking, or are traditional subjects like maths and science more important?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

Should schools concentrate on practical life skills or stay with traditional academic subjects? In my view the question is wrongly posed, because students need both.

Mathematics and science remain fundamental. They train logical thinking and the habit of solving problems step by step, and that habit is useful far beyond the exam hall. Understanding basic science also helps us make sense of the world, from weather reports to the advice a doctor gives us.

At the same time, we cannot ignore how unprepared many young adults are for independent life. Knowing how to budget, how to read a contract and how to cook a decent meal affects a person's well-being every single week. I have watched friends fall into debt simply because nobody ever taught them to plan their spending. Science teaching also protects young people from the misinformation that now circulates so freely online.

The answer, therefore, is not to choose but to combine. A curriculum that keeps its academic core while making room for practical skills would serve students far better than either approach alone. These are not difficult things to teach, and a single term of lessons would be enough to cover the essentials.

EXERCISE 11

A delayed online order

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 You ordered a laptop from an online shop three weeks ago. It has still not arrived. You received an email from the customer service team.

> Dear Customer,
> We are writing to apologise for the delay to order #48213. Our warehouse has been affected by a supplier problem and your item has not yet been dispatched.
> We expect to send it within ten days. Please tell us whether you wish to wait, change the item or cancel the order, and let us know how we could improve our service.

> The Customer Service Team

TASK 1.1 — about 50 words

Write a message to your friend, who recommended the shop to you. Write about your feelings and say what you have decided to do.

TASK 1.2 — 120–150 words

Write an email to the customer service team. Write about your feelings, say what you want them to do about your order, and suggest how their service could be improved.

PART 2 · TASK 2 — 180–200 words

You are taking part in an online discussion for language learners.

> The question is:
> "Is online shopping better than shopping in real shops?"

Post your response, giving reasons and examples. Take a clear position, support it with reasons and examples, and finish with a conclusion.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Remember the laptop I ordered from that shop you recommended? Three weeks later it still has not arrived. I am honestly frustrated, especially as nobody warned me. They have offered me ten more days, so I will wait, but only until the end of the month.

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for your email about order #48213. I appreciate the apology, but I must say that I am disappointed. The laptop was ordered three weeks ago for my studies, and I was told nothing about the delay until I wrote to you.

I would like to wait for the item rather than cancel, on condition that it is dispatched within the ten days you mention. If that is not possible, I would ask for a full refund.

As for your service, two changes would help a great deal. Customers should be told about a delay as soon as it is known, and the tracking page should show the real status of an order rather than "processing".

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 11 · Model answer

PART 2

"Is online shopping better than shopping in real shops?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Online shopping has grown so quickly that many people now ask whether high-street shops still have a purpose. In my opinion both have their place, though convenience increasingly favours the internet.

The advantages of buying online are obvious. You can compare dozens of sellers in minutes, prices are usually lower because the seller has no shop to maintain, and the goods arrive at your door. For anyone living far from a city, this access is genuinely transformative.

Real shops, however, still offer something a website cannot. You can handle the product, judge the quality of a fabric or the weight of a tool, and take it home the same day. Returning a faulty item is also far simpler across a counter than through a courier, as my own experience with a delayed order has taught me. Staff in a good shop also know their stock, and five minutes of their advice can save an hour of reading reviews written by strangers.

On balance, I buy books and electronics online, where the specification tells me everything, and clothes and food in person. The two are also converging: most chains now let you order online and collect in the shop.

A change to the bus timetable

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 You travel to work by bus every day. The transport company has written to passengers about a change to the service.

> Dear Passenger,

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you seen the letter about the number 24? From next month it runs every half hour and stops at nine. I am really annoyed, because I finish at half past nine on Thursdays. I am going to write and complain. Will you send something too?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for writing to passengers about the changes to the number 24. I am afraid the new timetable will cause me real difficulty, and I would like to explain why.

I work in the city centre until half past nine twice a week. With the last bus leaving at nine, I will have no way of getting home on those evenings except by taxi, which I cannot afford on a regular basis.

I would therefore ask you to keep one late service, at about ten o'clock, even if the daytime buses run less often. It would also help if the new timetable were displayed at every stop a fortnight before it begins.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 12 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should city centres be closed to private cars?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Closing city centres to private cars is an idea that provokes strong feelings, and I am largely in favour of it, provided it is done carefully.

The arguments for are hard to dispute. Fewer cars mean cleaner air, less noise and far fewer accidents, and the space freed from parking can become squares, cafés and cycle lanes. Cities that have tried it, from Oslo to Pontevedra, report that their centres became busier rather than emptier once people could walk in comfort.

There are, however, genuine objections. Shopkeepers fear losing customers who arrive by car, and people with limited mobility may find the centre harder to reach. Both concerns are real and neither should be dismissed. Deliveries can be restricted to the early morning, as they already are in several European capitals.

The answer is not a sudden ban but a staged one, introduced only where public transport is frequent and reliable, with exemptions for residents, deliveries and disabled drivers. Done in that order, the policy improves a city; done the other way round, it simply punishes people. Measured against that, a scheme imposed overnight on a city with a poor bus network deserves the opposition it gets.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Did your sister tell you the mountain trip is off? My brother is heartbroken, and I feel sorry for all of them. At least the money is coming back. I think the school should organise two day trips instead, which would cost far less. What does she think?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Mrs Yusupova,

Thank you for letting families know about the cancelled trip so promptly. My brother is in Year 8 and had been looking forward to it all term, so I will not pretend we were not disappointed.

Since the money is being returned, might I suggest two single-day excursions instead? A day in the mountains and a day at the museum would cost far less than a residential trip, and almost every family could afford both. The children would also miss far less teaching time than a week away would cost them.

For future years, I would ask the school to book the transport before collecting any money from families, and to hold a small reserve fund so that one withdrawal cannot cancel a whole trip.

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 13 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should school trips be a compulsory part of education?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

School trips are often treated as a reward that can be dropped when budgets are tight. I would argue instead that they are a real part of education and should be timetabled as such.

The strongest reason is that some things simply cannot be taught in a room. A pupil who has stood in front of a glacier understands erosion in a way no diagram achieves, and a day in a working factory explains an economy better than a chapter does. The memory lasts for decades, which is more than most lessons manage.

Trips also teach what the curriculum never lists. Travelling together and solving small problems away from home build independence in children who rarely leave their own district. A museum, a theatre or a court room has the same effect for subjects that have nothing to do with geography.

The obvious objection is cost, and it is a fair one. That is an argument for subsidised places and cheaper local trips, not for abandoning the idea. A school that never leaves its gates teaches a narrower world than it should. Children who have never had to organise anything for themselves arrive at university unable to.

EXERCISE 14

A new dress code at work

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 The company you work for has decided to introduce a formal dress code. The director has written to all staff.

> Dear Colleagues,
> From next month all staff will be expected to wear formal business dress in the office, including on days when no clients are visiting.
> The aim is to present a consistent professional image. We understand that this is a significant change and we would welcome your views before the rule takes effect.

TASK 1.1

about 50 words

Write a message to a colleague who is a close friend. Write about your feelings about the new rule and what you intend to do.

TASK 1.2

120–150 words

Write an email to the director. Give your views on the new dress code and suggest how the rule could be made to work better for staff.

PART 2 · TASK 2

180–200 words

You are taking part in an online discussion for language learners.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you read the director's email about formal dress every day? I think it is unnecessary, since most of us never see a client. I am not going to ignore it, but I will write and suggest keeping Fridays casual. Are you going to reply as well?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Mr Nazarov,

Thank you for inviting our views before the new dress code begins. I understand the wish for a consistent professional image, and I have no objection to formal dress when clients are in the building.

I would question the need for it every day, however. My team works almost entirely by telephone and email, and the rule would mean a considerable expense for colleagues who do not own several suits. Several of them have mentioned the cost to me privately but would not raise it with you directly.

Might I suggest a compromise? Formal dress on client days and on Mondays, smart casual otherwise, with the standard defined clearly so that nobody is left guessing. A small allowance towards the first purchase would also be welcomed by younger staff.

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 14 · Model answer

PART 2

"Does what people wear at work affect how well they do their job?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Whether clothing affects performance at work is a question people answer very differently, and the honest reply is that it matters, but much less than employers believe.

There is something in the argument for formality. Dressing deliberately marks the start of the working day, which helps concentration, and in jobs built on trust — law, medicine, banking — a client reads appearance as evidence of competence before a word is spoken.

Against that stands the experience of the last few years. Millions of people worked from home in whatever they liked and output did not collapse; in many firms it rose. What actually drives performance is clear objectives, a manageable workload and a manager worth working for, none of which has anything to do with a tie. Uniforms in schools make the same point: they signal a shared purpose more than they improve any individual's work.

My own view is that a dress code is worth having where clients see the work, and is otherwise a distraction from the things that genuinely determine how well a job is done. A rule that nobody can explain is simply resented, and resentment costs an employer far more than an open collar.

Hi Jack,

How are you coping with the drilling? It starts at seven and I have not slept properly all week. I am writing to the site manager to ask for a later start on Saturdays. Would you sign it with me? A letter from several flats carries more weight.

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for writing to residents about the work beside our building. I appreciate being told in advance, but I must explain the difficulty the current hours are causing.

I work night shifts at the hospital and sleep during the morning. Drilling from seven o'clock makes that impossible, and after a week I am already exhausted. Several neighbours with young children have the same problem. The windows on this side of the building are single-glazed, which makes the noise considerably worse.

Three things would help considerably. Could the noisiest work begin at nine rather than seven, could Saturday work finish at one o'clock, and could you publish a weekly schedule so that residents know when the loudest days are coming?

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 15 · Model answer

PART 2

"Should cities build upwards or outwards?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

As cities grow, every planner faces the same choice: add towers in the centre or new districts at the edge. I believe building upwards is, on the whole, the wiser option.

Density is the main argument. A tall building houses hundreds of families on the footprint of a few houses, which keeps journeys short and makes buses, schools and clinics affordable to run. Sprawl does the opposite: it eats farmland, forces everyone into a car and leaves the outer districts dependent on roads that are permanently congested.

I do not pretend the case is one-sided. Towers can be badly built and badly managed, they overshadow streets, and families with small children often want a garden rather than a balcony on the fourteenth floor. Tall buildings are also far cheaper to heat, because each flat shares walls with its neighbours rather than losing heat on every side.

The sensible answer is height with conditions: good design, real parks at ground level, and a limit on how far a city is allowed to spread before it is obliged to build up instead. Where towers have failed, it has almost always been poor maintenance rather than height that was to blame.

EXERCISE 16

A sports club needs volunteers

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 You are a member of a local football club. The club committee has written to members asking for help.

> Dear Member,
> Our two paid coaches are leaving at the end of the season and the club cannot afford to replace both of them. Without help from members, the junior teams may have to close.
> We are asking members to volunteer a few hours a week, and we would like to hear any other ideas you have for keeping the junior section going.
> Best wishes,
> The Club Committee

TASK 1.1

about 50 words

Write a message to your friend, who is also a member of the club. Write about your feelings and say what you have decided to do.

TASK 1.2

120–150 words

Write an email to the club committee. Say how you feel about the situation, whether you can volunteer, and give other ideas for keeping the junior teams going.

PART 2 · TASK 2

180–200 words

You are taking part in an online discussion for language learners.

> The question is:
> "Should sport play a bigger part in school life?"

Post your response, giving reasons and examples. Take a clear position, support it with reasons and examples, and finish with a conclusion.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL — about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Did you read the committee's letter? Both coaches are leaving and the junior teams might fold. That would be a real shame after all the work we put in. I have offered to help on Saturday mornings. Could you take a session too, even once a month?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL — 120–150 words

Dear Committee Members,

Thank you for being honest with members about the club's position. I was sorry to read it, as the junior section is the best thing this club does and losing it would undo years of work.

I would like to volunteer. I can coach on Saturday mornings throughout the season and I already hold a Level 1 certificate, so no training would be needed. I could also help with the Sunday fixtures once a month if another parent shared the driving.

Two further ideas may be worth considering. A small sponsorship from local businesses, in return for their names on the shirts, could cover one paid coach. A parents' rota for transport and kit would also free the coaches to coach rather than organise.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

PART 2

"Should sport play a bigger part in school life?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST — 180–200 words

Most schools treat sport as the subject that gives way when exams approach. I would argue that this is exactly backwards and that sport deserves a larger place, not a smaller one.

The health case alone is strong. Rates of obesity and poor fitness among teenagers have risen steadily, and for a great many children the school timetable is the only guaranteed exercise in their week. Lose that and nothing replaces it.

There is also a benefit that shows up in the classroom. Regular exercise improves sleep, concentration and mood, and children who play in teams learn to lose, to share credit and to keep going when they are behind — lessons no written exam can deliver. Team sport is one of the few places where a child who struggles academically can be the one everyone relies on.

The usual objection is that lesson time is already short. But a school that produces exhausted, unfit pupils with good grades has not really succeeded. Three hours a week is not a luxury; it is part of educating a whole person. Finland, whose results nobody doubts, gives its pupils more physical activity than we do, not less.

A university course changes online

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 You are studying part-time at a university. The faculty has written to students about a change to the way the course is taught.

> Dear Student,
> From February, all lectures on your course will be delivered online and the campus seminars will be reduced from weekly to monthly.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you read the faculty email? All lectures go online in February and seminars drop to once a month. I am worried, because the seminars are where I actually learn. I am going to ask them to keep them fortnightly. Will you add your name to mine?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for explaining the changes to the course and the reasons behind them. I understand the pressure on fees, but I am concerned about the effect on part-time students in particular.

Recorded lectures will suit me well, as I can watch them after work. The loss of weekly seminars worries me a great deal more. Discussion with the tutor is where I test whether I have actually understood the reading, and once a month is not enough to keep that going. I would add that several of us travel over an hour to attend, so a monthly seminar is also a long journey for a short session.

Could the seminars be held fortnightly, even if they are shorter? An online discussion board monitored by a tutor between sessions would also help considerably.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 17 · Model answer

PART 2

"Is a university degree still worth the time and money it costs?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

With fees rising and graduate salaries flat in many fields, it is reasonable to ask whether a degree still repays what it costs. My answer is a qualified yes.

The financial evidence still favours graduates. Across a working life they earn substantially more than non-graduates in most countries, and whole professions — medicine, engineering, law, teaching — remain closed without the qualification. For those careers the question hardly arises.

The picture is far less clear elsewhere. A student who borrows heavily for a degree with no obvious destination may graduate with real debt and no advantage, and skilled trades or good apprenticeships often pay better and start sooner. Employers in many fields now use the degree as a simple filter, whether or not the course content is relevant to the job.

What a degree genuinely buys, beyond the certificate, is three years of learning how to read critically, argue from evidence and finish difficult work alone. Those habits outlast any syllabus. So the honest answer is that a degree is worth it when it is chosen deliberately, and an expensive mistake when it is simply the default. The cost of getting that decision wrong has risen sharply in the last twenty years.

Hi Jack,

You will not believe it: the restaurant has emailed to apologise about Saturday. They noticed the wait themselves, which I did not expect. It does not fix the cold soup, but at least somebody is paying attention. I might give them one more chance. What do you think?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for your email. It is unusual for a restaurant to notice a problem before the guest complains, and I appreciate it.

The evening did not go well. We waited fifty minutes between the starters and the main course, and when my mother's fish arrived it was cold and had to be sent back. As it was her birthday, that was particularly disappointing. The food itself, once it came, was excellent, and our waiter was polite throughout.

What would bring us back is simple: enough staff on a Saturday, and a word from the kitchen when a table is waiting. A dish that leaves the pass cold should never reach the guest.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 18 · Model answer

PART 2

"Are traditional family meals disappearing, and does it matter?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

Across much of the world, the family sitting down together at a fixed hour is becoming the exception. I think the trend is real, and that it costs us more than we notice.

The causes are not mysterious. Parents work longer and less predictable hours, children's evenings fill with clubs and homework, and cheap delivery makes it effortless for everyone to eat something different at a different time. Add a screen each and the meal dissolves entirely.

Why it matters is less obvious but better documented than people expect. Regular family meals are associated with stronger vocabulary in young children and lower rates of anxiety in teenagers, largely because the table is where ordinary conversation happens. A family that never eats together has to find another time to talk, and often does not. Shift work makes it harder still, since one parent is often leaving as the other arrives home.

I am not arguing for seven formal dinners a week. Two or three unhurried meals with the screens away would be enough to keep what is being lost. It is also where children learn to listen, to wait their turn and to take an interest in somebody else's day.

EXERCISE 19

A recycling scheme for the building

Part 1 · two emails · Part 2 · discussion post

PART 1 The company that manages your block of flats wants to start a recycling scheme. They have written to all residents.

> Dear Resident,
> We are planning to introduce separate bins for paper, glass and plastic in the courtyard from next month, and to remove two of the general waste bins to make space.
> The scheme will only work if residents use it properly. Please tell us what you think of the plan and what would make it easier for you to take part.
> Kind regards,
> Building Management

TASK 1.1

about 50 words

Write a message to a neighbour who is a friend. Write about your feelings about the plan and say what you intend to do.

TASK 1.2

Write an email to the building management. Give your opinion of the recycling plan and suggest what would make it easier for residents to take part.

PART 2 · TASK 2

PART 1

Read these after you have written your own. Notice the structure and the linking language, not just the ideas.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Have you read the notice about recycling? I think it is a good idea, though taking away two general bins worries me a little. I am going to write and ask for clear labels in Uzbek and Russian. Shall we put our names on the same message?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Sir or Madam,

Thank you for consulting residents about the recycling scheme. I welcome the plan: at present almost everything from this building goes to landfill, and separating paper and glass would be a simple improvement.

I would raise one concern. Removing two general waste bins before people have learned the new system is likely to leave bags on the ground within a week. It would be safer to remove them a month after the new bins arrive. A short item in the residents' group chat on the day the bins arrive would reach almost everyone.

Three things would help residents take part: clear labels in Uzbek and Russian with pictures, a short notice in every stairwell explaining what goes where, and bins kept under cover so that wet paper does not spoil.

Yours faithfully,

Alex

Exercise 19 · Model answer

PART 2

"Is it the responsibility of individuals or governments to protect the environment?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

When environmental damage is discussed, the argument quickly becomes personal: should I fly less, or should the government act? In my view the responsibility is shared, but it is not shared equally.

Individual choices clearly matter. Millions of people recycling, wasting less food and using public transport add up to a real reduction, and habits spread through families and streets far faster than laws do.

Yet the scale is wrong for individuals alone. One household cannot build a rail network, insulate a city's housing or decide how electricity is generated, and the industries that emit most are reached only by regulation. Placing the whole burden on consumers also suits polluters very well, since it keeps the argument about shopping bags rather than power stations. Refusing to buy from the worst offenders also changes company behaviour surprisingly quickly.

The honest position is that governments must set the rules and the infrastructure, and citizens must use them and keep voting for them. Neither half works without the other, but only one half can act at the scale the problem demands. Recycling a yoghurt pot while a coal plant runs next door is not a strategy, however virtuous it feels.

TASK 1.1 · INFORMAL

about 50 words

Hi Jack,

Sit down for this one: they have offered me two years in Warsaw, starting in September. I am excited and terrified in equal measure. The package looks generous and I would be mad to refuse it, so I think I am going to say yes. Coffee tomorrow?

Best,

Alex

TASK 1.2 · FORMAL

120–150 words

Dear Dilnoza,

Thank you for the offer of the Warsaw post, and for the confidence in my work that it represents. I was delighted to receive it and, having discussed it with my family, I am pleased to accept.

September would suit me well, as it gives me time to hand over the Samarkand project properly rather than leaving it half finished. I would also like to begin the language course before I leave, if a place can be arranged.

I do have three questions. Would the company help with a visa for my wife, who hopes to work in Poland? Is there a budget for travel home at the end of the first year? And will my current role be held open for my return in two years' time?

Yours sincerely,

Alex

Exercise 20 · Model answer

PART 2

"Is it better to build your career in your own country or abroad?"

TASK 2 · DISCUSSION POST 180–200 words

For ambitious people in a smaller economy, the question of whether to build a career at home or abroad arrives sooner or later. Both routes work, and the choice is less permanent than it looks.

Going abroad offers scale. Larger markets mean larger projects, better equipment and colleagues at the top of the field, and a few years in that environment can accelerate a career by a decade. The money is usually better, and working in a second language is itself a lasting qualification.

Staying has quieter advantages that people undervalue. You already understand the market and the culture, your network is here, and in a growing economy a capable person reaches a senior position far younger than they would abroad. There is also the matter of being present for parents as they age, which no salary compensates for. A foreign posting teaches you how differently the same job can be done, which is hard to learn any other way.

My own view is that the strongest career is often both: experience abroad, then bring it home while the skills are still fresh. Returning with that experience is often what opens the most senior doors at home.
